

on the left, predict (a Colonel of
y) and the Silver
protectors of the
quaintly garbed
backward. Two costumes carried
the Household in
nd while the King
front of their
oreign representa-
In some cases the
ng in couples—a

es seated them-
gold chairs only
e floor, and the
"General Circle"
entlemen attend-
one as they must
ented at a levee.
ne at the extreme
ssing out of a side
mirrored corridor,
e on the right of
ating moment as
And did the
rd there perhaps colonial", for he said, "That will
or you."
carefully spread
r, your card was Chamberlain at
is your name is ed low to His
A grave courtly
arther one tends
een. Strangely
he grandeur of the blue-white
ms—I saw not a
is ablaze with
en—but it was
sincere eyes as
dged my bow—
essed upon my ficent pomp of
overwhelm her
with the King.
ribute to their

of the Throne
one's train over
ered the salon
oment was not ing to sit and
the women as
Royal Presence.
s, composure—
eautiful gowns,
atourier's art;
of priceless
But mere dress
at Court. What was a good
nd a good walk,
ssentials to fit
kground of a
emed to mark
ure—dress was

to the Throne
presentations,
as to the later
in this Salon
shed the Royal
ocession which
Dignified Beef-
ie with their
rlet and black
-poms on their
intervals with
y enough to be e and it was a

INDIVIDUALITY! When I create a gown I am actuated by one basic thought. Is it true to type? Has it that subtle sense of proportion which makes for chic and poise? My gowns come to you after a thoughtful consideration of fashion distinction and personal mood. They have that studied exclusiveness which makes for individuality. You will find Martha Gowns only in Canada's best shops - - -

Martha

610 Bay St.
Toronto