Hay Wrightson, London

Miss Elizabeth Campbell, daughter of Mrs. Campbell and the late Hon. Colin H. Campbell, Attorney-General of Manitoba, who was among the debutantes to be presented at the Court of St. James. Miss Campbell's gown is the Liberty model worn by her mother in 1911, when Mrs. Campbell attended the Coronation reception and was presented to Their Majesties. Her train is fashioned partly of the ivory chiffon which formed the train of Mrs. Campbell's gown at the Coronation of King Edward in 1902. This interesting debutante is attending a secretarial school in London, and recently taught school in Mutton Bay, French Labrador. At left: Miss Dulce Hamlet, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Hamlet, of Victoria, B. C., who was presented at the Court of St. James by Lady Parmoor. Miss Hamlet's gown of crêpe satin was edged with a deep banding of fur, which also banded the court train. The conventional veil and feathers and a bouquet of rosebuds completed the presentation ensemble
