

Golf in one of the world's most dramatic settings. Here are the finalists in the championship flight of the Totem Pole tournament at Jasper Park. On the left is Mr. Gardiner White, of New York, who repeated his win of last year. On the right is Mr. Freddie Wood, brilliant young amateur from Vancouver, who was beaten by Mr. White on the 17th. In the qualifying round, White won the medal with a 73 and Wood was in next place with 74. In the picture below Mr. White is seen holing out for a half in the 3rd green. Below: Mr. Ben Cool (left) of Calgary, well-known Alberta golfer, runner-up to Mr. Gardiner White in the Totem Pole championship in 1929. Right: Mr. Freddie Wood, Vancouver, present holder of the B. C. amateur title he had covered half the course was two hundred yards ahead of the following boat. Although this lead had been cut to around 100 yards, he still had the race apparently in his hands when he rounded the last turn. Unfortunately, a defect in the engine caused him to lose speed and Hilton Fraser, of Lake George, N.Y., driving Why Not V, shot past him and won by a margin of between one and two lengths.

In passing, it might also be noted that young Ardiel came in second in the open Class C event. This sixteen-year-old, U. C. C. student has certainly made some of the older drivers sit up and take notice during this past season.

IN COMING ashore, I think first notice should go to the performance of Lady Byng, ridden by Paul Higgins, which won the touch-and-out contest at Rochester Horse Show, on September 4. This splendid show-horse, owned by Stafford Higgins, of Toronto, and which appears in the horse show programmes as "aged," has certainly piled up a wonderful record and has to her credit cash winnings in excess of $4,000, as well as innumerable ribbons, plates and shields. Paul Higgins, her rider, is another Canadian youngster who has brought the Dominion very much into the limelight in recent international sporting events.

The United States Golf Association Team, which met the Canadian Golf Association Team for the Devonshire Trophy at Toronto Golf Club, won their match by a margin of fourteen points, the third largest margin in the history of the match, which was instituted in 1918. Since that time, Canada has won twice, in 1918 and in 1923.

The scoring for this match is on the Nassau system. No Canadian succeeded in scoring the maximum of three points, while four American players turned in a score of this figure. Eight Canadians failed to score, whereas only three Americans turned in blanks. The final result gave the United States team a total of 25, whereas the Canadian total came to 11.

CANADA'S hope of winning the Canadian ladies' golf title went by the board when Miss Helen Hicks, of Hewlett, L.I., eliminated Miss Ada Mackenzie, of Toronto, by 7 and 6. Miss Hicks played a marvellous game. Her score for the first nine holes was 35, one stroke under men's par and three under women's par. Opposed to such play, Miss Mackenzie took only one hole, the short eleventh, having two holes, the fifth and twelfth.

On September 20, Miss Orcutt won the Canadian [See also page 81]

