

BRILLIANT AND BIZARRE INDIAN RITUAL COLORS VISIT

...fair, June, 1927

Trio

During his visit to Vancouver Island, Lord Willingdon, governor-general of Canada, was made a chief of the Indian tribes in one of the most brilliant and bizarre ceremonies which has ever taken place on the Pacific Coast. Above: His Excellency receiving the investiture

Directly, at centre, the state barge bearing His Excellency to the great tribal investiture. Below, at Government House, Victoria: Miss McKenzie, Lord Hardinge, A.D.C., Lord Willingdon, Mr. Fairbairne, secretary to the Lieutenant-Governor, Commander Nelles, the Hon. Captain J. C. Jarvis, A.D.C., Lieutenant Bruce, Col. Beverley-Browne, Viscountess Willingdon
