

~~Miss~~ <sup>M.</sup> Levitzsky,

~~Switches, snarecalling, hobbling, etc. specialist.~~
~~Manicure artist and beauty doctor.~~

Mrs. O'Rourke looks at him admiringly saying:

"Where do ye live?"

"At the Monster Apts".

"Sure tis the grandest place in town."

"Come along. We'll have to hurry".

"Seeing its you dearie, and the prize being ~~at~~ right ~~now~~, I'm thinking ye can have the precious childer for a loan, and sure their mother herself was after telling me she'd not be home for the dinner the night".

Dick pays no attention to her as she rattles along, but with a twin under either arm wriggling and protesting and striking at each other behind him, he hurries along through the park and over to the Monster.

Great excitement in apartment on his advent, but Birdie falls excitedly and relievedly in with his scheme. The admiring Mrs. O'Rourke wandering about the apartment comes in contact with the grinning Lilly Belle, who treats her to some of Dick's ~~Secret~~ <sup>Mad Ball</sup>. Mrs. O'Rourke is now firmly convinced that these are the grand people and that she can safely trust Minette's babies with them. With a tearful, embracing farewell, ~~in a great hurry to~~ she hurries out to indulge in her favorite and long since denied indulgence <sup>in</sup> drink.

She makes a line for a favorite haunt. Here she buys quantities of liquor, gets very drunk, and staggers out with a bottle in either hand, appearing in Madison Square Park
