

ELLI

Toronto, June 1

Canada! June sings the chilling epithet, Oh to be in Canada now magazine named after April—will distill the each day a jewel. Each year our social year social sophisticated gardens compete with the greater art (to quote more strongly stressing at Government House tending toward London high spots of the social assembled in the flower-enclosures and our host and Mrs. Ross; the fluttered the way for the vice-ceeding Lord and Lady of English tradition, the King when they

the ballroom to curtsy to Eaton and Mrs. J. H. te. By the way, Mrs. being worn so much in on this vice-regal occasion and it was a dire daughter of the late Major Wright's left to dance with Her equal to the occasion, es at the gala opening tiptoos to the occasion with Captain Streat-but the twinkle in his Mrs. Starr, the latter Jean, to stay handy ere not on duty long. had entertained at ever so attractive in d satin in white were ana Kingsmill, Mrs. turned from a motor roctor, Mrs. Charles looked at the latter statue come to life which we had seen her pupils gave a of the season.

self—great bowls of in French windows scellency danced by onlight flashing the pearl and diamond for a spring dance c. [See also page 36]

Top: Mrs. Henry Rutherford Jackman, of Cuny Drive, Toronto, with her bridal attendants. From left: Miss Helen Rutherford, Miss Sally Stark, bridesmaids, and Miss Alida Starr, maid of honor, in Grecian robes of chiffon in rose tones to harmonize with the classic simplicity of the bridal gown of ivory chiffon. Master Govan Kilgour, in pink satin, and little Miss Eleanor Langford in a Kate Greenaway frock, were diminutive attendants. The bride was formerly Mary Coyne Rowell, daughter of Hon. Newton W. Rowell K.C., and Mrs. Rowell, of Crescent Road, Toronto. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Jackman, of Toronto. After a honeymoon in the Southern States, they will take up residence in Toronto

At right: Mrs. Edward S. Gallagher, of Toronto, with her wedding attendants, who included: Miss Kathleen Stanley, of Montreal, maid of honor; Miss Audrey Gallagher and Miss Agnes Reid, of Toronto; and Misses Beatrice and Clare Preston, of Ottawa, twin cousins of the bride. Their lacy capelines and princess frocks of yellow chiffon complemented the princess bridal gown of ivory satin with veil of Chantilly lace and ivory net to effect a distinctive bridal entourage. The bride was formerly Agnes Mavis Preston, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Preston, of Ottawa. Mr. Gallagher is a son of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Gallagher, of Toronto

Top portrait by Ashley & Grippen

Lower portrait by Paul Horsdal

TWO SOCIETY WEDDINGS