

Furious Polly is moving from him, when he bars her way. He is half drunk and attempts to seize her in his arms. There is a struggle.

While Polly and Minton have been speaking, cat footed Chum Lee has sped again to the barn, this time to pull at the coat of Galloway. The latter arrives just in time Minton finds himself wrenched back by an iron hand. Galloway swings him from Polly.

The noise of the combat brings all hands from the barn. A circle forms about the two fighting men. Minton is huge and strong, but Galloway is a scientific boxer, and he gives the big bully the drubbing of his life time.

The Reserve.

The sheep and cattlemen are everywhere about the great compound. Polly is there at the head of the T Bar T outfit.

A Monster Powwow of the Indians has been called, and from all parts of the Reserve, the Indians are riding in.

But one subject is discussed. The order from Washington to clear every head of cattle from the Indian Reserve. This is to be the prelude to the final disposition and settlement of the dispute by the Government. ~~whax~~ The sheep men feel sure that once the cattle are removed their sheep will have the right of way. The cattlemen are bent only on holding the sheep back.

While the Powwow is at its heights, Galloway comes riding in. The cattlemen are surprised, as hen