Twisting & Twirling

Confusion & Chaos

my fashion's all rage & satire dashings & swishings

a riot of colors

but with a deep-rooted design some with the force & the flash & the passion of paintings by Vincenti Van Gogh some that are petty & parted & foolish some that are evanescent & rough Phlegmatic I sit in this riot of colors in the grip of a vice-like & terrible pain silent I sit through my sad shivers in amazement

God for my passive resistance again!

That full relief of knowing what to say & what to do, yet doing nothing, with a heart so full that had to speak returns tears to the eyes.

That swelling, filling up fashion in my breast
